

St Michael's Players present

Dead Guilty

A psycho thriller
by RICHARD HARRIS

St Michael's Centre
Elmwood Road W4

When John Haddrell dies of a heart attack at the wheel of his car, the woman by his side is not his wife, Margaret, but a work colleague, Julia. Recovering from the injuries she sustained in the ensuing crash, Julia is visited by Margaret and the story takes us on a psychological big-dipper.

Presented at London's Apollo Theatre in a production starring Jenny Seagrove and Hayley Mills, Dead Guilty is an intriguing and powerful piece.

The action takes place in Julia Darrow's small Victorian house in West London

Time – the present

CAST:
In Order of Appearance

Julia Darrow

Margaret Haddrell

Gary

Anne Bennett

The Coroner

Kathy Lye

Fran Fox

Jim Simpson

Sue Darrieulat

Mick Cawson

CREW:

Director

Producer

Business Manager

Set

Lighting & Sound

Props

Front of House

Posters and other artwork

Jacquetta Pease

Margaret Collier

Chris Hulatt

Richard Phillips

Phil Lye

Mick Cawson

Carine Williams and her team

Jan Pieńkowski

St Michael's Players was founded in 1949 by members of St Michael's Church congregation and although we have cast our net wider in the intervening years, we still have a close association with the church in Elmwood Road, Chiswick.

Indeed, with the building of the new centre,
we are literally attached to St Michael's.

We have at least two full productions each year and a one-act play, generally rehearsing on Monday and Thursday nights. As well as the plays, we enjoy other activities together - such as our summer party, BISISIPI (Bring It, Sing It, Say It, Play It), when we try to entertain one another, the summer Bar-B-Q, the annual dinner and, of course, play readings.

We are always delighted to welcome new members, whatever their skills. With such a small group (only about twenty-five seriously active members), we need talents of every kind - scene designers, painters and builders, costume finders and makers, lighting and sound wizards, stage managers, business managers and front of house gurus, directors and producers, prop researchers, publicity promoters, prompts - oh yes, and actors.

If you have any (or all) of the above aptitudes or would just like to have a go, call our Membership Secretary,

Tel: 020 7731 5937